" Law on books " is the hard coded, if you will, version of the law which is used to make our interpretations from. On the other hand, " law in action " is the interpretation of the law by law enforcement, prosecutors, defense attorneys, and judges. This is where the interpretations are translated into decisions and case law is created. " Law in action " may differ from " law on books ", but the actions are what make the written law good and acceptable.
